

Jennifer Curtin

Jennifer Curtin is a lecturer in Politics and a member of the Centre for Research on Work and Society in the Global Era (WAGE) at Monash University in Melbourne, Australia. She gained her undergraduate and graduate degrees from the University of Waikato, New Zealand, and her PhD from the Australian National University (ANU) in 1997. That year she took up a postdoctoral fellowship at the ANU to begin a project on contingent women workers and trade unionism, while organising the Third International Conference on Emerging Union Structures. She has taught comparative, New Zealand and Australian politics, as well as courses on gender and politics, women and organisations, and industrial relations and citizenship. Her publications include Women and Trade Unions: A Comparative Perspective, published by Ashgate in 1999, as well as a number of book chapters and journal articles on gender and trade unionism. Her current research is focused on gender and community unionism in Australia and abroad.