LYELL RITCHIE

Lyell Ritchie joined Fedcap, a 75-year-old nonprofit that advances the development of people, businesses and communities, helping individuals and targeted populations break through barriers to achieve long-term, living-wage employment, and creating jobs with a future, in August 2009 as Vice President of Strategic Business Development, tasked with overseeing and advancing its four core businesses.

Fedcap Facilities Management, Office Services, Manufacturing and Home Care currently support 1,500 jobs in New York, New Jersey, and Washington, DC, through managed-services contracts with public- and private-sector business customers. Fedcap’s core businesses provide essential job creation and revenue to support workforce- and economic development programs that serve approximately 7,000 adults and young adults each year.

Prior to joining Fedcap, Mr. Ritchie worked for 30 years in the commercial sector, holding positions in global account management, executive-level sales, large-scale program and project management, business and new market development, go-to-market strategies, sourcing and governance. A native of Washington, DC, he currently resides in Brooklyn.