The graph shows the proportion of women on boards over time, comparing public and private sectors. The proportion for the public sector (dotted line) and the private sector (solid line) are represented from 1981 to 2007. The proportion for the public sector starts around 0.2 and increases steadily, while the proportion for the private sector starts around 0.1 and also increases, but at a slightly faster rate than the public sector.
